

"I fell in love with the countryside, with the hand work and with the way it feels passing time in the middle of a vineyard. I fell in love with nature and her metamorphoses. These metamorphoses are like messages; to be read and understood in order to appreciate them as gifts to be cherished. I fell in love with the grape harvest and the relationship the farmers have with their work, always done in harmony with the land.

I fell in love with wine and its essence of the countryside. I fell in love with the land, the grape, and the terroir which produces the wine."

Michele Satta

Michele Satta's first harvest was in 1974. 42 years later Michele is still surprised about the land's generosity and is enthusiastic about his harvest every year. He continues to experiment with the relationship between the vineyard – which is biodynamic – and the cellar. He is never tired of searching for new blends and he is constantly trying to perfect his wines, which are already known in the national and international scene.

The visit to the estate Michele Satta is to journey through the history of the wine tradition of the Tuscan Coast and of the brave vigneron who worked the land in front of the sea, in Bolgheri, now one of the most famous regions of wine in the world.
